SURPRISE AND PRESENTATION

Elder George Reynolds the Happy Recipient Last Night.

BY SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD.

Feeling Address Accompanies Gift of A Handsome Leather Chair-Geueral Church News.

Elder George Reynolds, first assistant superintendent of Church Sunday schools, was tendered a very pleasant surprise at his home on Fourth street last evening, the event having been given by his fellow associates, the Deseret Sunday School Union board. By a carefully planned ruse Elder Reynolds was detained at the office till a comparatively late hour, during which time the board gathered at the home of Elder J. Golden Kimball, and from there repaired to the Reynolds home, where the veteran Sunday school worker found them at 8 o'clock on his return from business down town. It was a surprise of the first order, but Bider Reynolds recovered sufficiently to bid all a hearty welcome, after which the evening's exercises were begun.

Practically the first thing on the program was the presentation to Elder Reynolds of a handsome leather chair, the speech being made by Elder J. M. Tanner, who acted as master of cere-The address accompanying it follows, the same being signed by Presidents Joseph F. Smith, Anthon H. Lund, and Elders Joseph M. Tanner, Thomas C. Griggs, Levi W. Richards, L. John Nuttall, J. W. Ure, George M. Cannon, George D. Pyper, Horace Cummings, Joseph W. Summerhays and Seymour B. Young.

PRESENTATION ADDRESS.

"We your brethren of the Sunday School Union Board have long appreciated the great value of your services to the board, and to the cause of Sabbath school education throughout the

'Fully realizing the difficulty we should find in securing services equiva-lent to those which you have so intel-ligently and faithfully rendered, were you called from our midst, we have thought it proper to express to you in life the gratitude which we feel for the untiring devotion of your labors, and the love we experience in our associations with you.

'Among Sunday school workers the name of George Reynolds will long remain associated with many of the best efforts that have been made to promote the education of the youth of Zion, and it is the wish of your brethren of the board who are here assembled, tonight, that you should know the confidence and esteem in which you are held by them, that perchance their faith and love for you may sustain you in some weary moment, encourage you in some despondent mood, and in all things make you feel that you enjoy the sympathetic and friendly interest of those who know rou best.
"That these expressions of our esteem in your behalf may remain fresh in your memory, and the source of continued encouragement, we have thought it fitting to accompany this address to you with a memento whose constant forever be to you a reminder of the love we bear you.

We beg you to receive this chair with the same good cheer and pleasure with which it is given, and with it the strongest assurance that we look for-ward with pleasure in the future to the same harmony and satisfaction that have characterized our deliberations and associations in the past.

"We cannot at this time refrain from admonishing you that there is a duty which you owe to your God, and that there is a responsibility which you are there is a responsibility which you are under to your brethren, to do all in your power to prolong a life so devoted and so useful to the kingdom of our

Elder Reynolds responded feelingly, thanking those present for their good wishes and expressing the pleasure he had always felt in laboring for the cause of God. Then followed addresses by Presidents Smith, Lund, and Seymour B. Young, interspersed with songs and musical selections, after which refreshments were served, and a real enjoyable time had by all, the party numbering between 50 and 60 per-

A nice feature of the evening was the fine fruit furnished by Elder Horace Cummings of Mill Creek, its artistic arrangement, as well as its excellent flavor, doing much to satisfy the appeflavor, doing much to satisfy the appetities of those present. The evening's exercises were carried out in front of the house under the glare of Chinese lanterns, and all voted it a time long to be remembered, and one which, it can be safely said, will not soon be forgotten by Elder Reynolds.

STILL AT LARGE.

Missouri Editors Have Not Yet Left

The City.

The Missouri editors, who besieged Salt Lake yesterday and were "shown" all that was to be "shown," are still at large here in town, and are seeing things on their own hook. After their trip in the "seeing" car-which Mr. Mariger kindly called the "showing" car during the occupation of the Missouri scribes—and their dip in the brine, and their listening to the great Tabernacle organ, these hardy jugglers of gray matter were so charmed with this fair city that they have decided to stay over today and see it more. But they are enjoying themselves individually today where yesterday they did it collectively. The party has broken up and has no organization at all now. Some of the editors go out this afternoon, some this evening, and others will remain over for two or three lays. Some, it is said with a wink of the eye, don't care if they never go

"You can't quote me too strongly. We have had an elegant time, a beautiful time, and every word I shall ever say about Salt Lake as long as I live shall be a good word. The Press club's treatment of us was princely—princely, sir, that's the word. And we appreciate it deeply."

Mr. Bradford will go to Ogden tonight and visit for a day or so with a nephew of his, C. D. Roberts. Other members of the party will leave intermittently today, tomorrow and the next day-it all depends upon when they think they

FRANCIS FINED 85.

Ex-Prize Fighter Said His Friends Gave Him the "Double Cross."

The only state case before Judge Diehl this morning was that of Jim Francis, the ex-prize fighter, charged with battery upon the person of one John Page, of the same color as Francts. The case was decidedly amusing, especially when Francis took the stand and told his side of the fracas. It was alleged that Francis pounced upon Page and smote him several smites, cutting his mouth and inflicting a black eye. Just how he made the black eye is difficult to understand for the simple reason that Page is naturally as black as the blackest eye that could be inflicted. But be that as it may, Jim certainly hit him a couple of pretty hard joits. Jim says they "was simply a couple ob

The trouble occurred at Calder's park on the afternoon of July 24. According to Page, he and Bob Huston, also colored, bought a couple of tickets on the horse races, picking Julia A as the winner. Their tickets were numbered While standing around waiting for the race to end, up comes Francis with a ticket and the information that their rabbit's foot had done its work and Julia A was the winner. Handing Huston a ticket he asked him to cash it along with theirs. Page demanded to see the ticket and claims that it was number "66," and no good for that race. He then began to chide Jim gently for trying to work such a game on them and he asserted that it wouldn't go. Then, he says, Jim hit him.

Jim's story is different. He declared that his ticket was "79," and that when he gave it to Huston, they tried to work the double cover on him.

JUDGE DIEHL'S COURT.

Family Troubles of J. McKay Are Aired This Afternoon.

In Judge Diehl's court this afternoon, the family trouble of J. McKay, a hack driver, were aired once more. He was accused of drunkenness and abusing his wife. Mrs. McKay said her husbane failed to support her and came home drunk, called her vile names and kicked down a door. It is the second or third down a door. It is the second or third time these family rows have been heard by Judge Diehl and he said it was monotonous and he was becoming tired of it. McKay was fined $5. grammannamanne The Salt Lake Newsboys' union foregathered at Saltair yesterday afternoon and from then on until the last train left for the city the youngsters were very rillich in evidence. They sported in the water and they frisked on the sand. They had free popcorn and free soda water and with the judicious application of two sets of boxing gloves nearly precipitated a free fight. They had a lovely time. In the evening the numerous prizes that had been donated by the citizens and merchants were distributed, when the man with the largest family was made happy with a rocker while the mother of the hand-somest baby (in her estimation) was child captured the high chair. The and other contests created some mirth, chiefly on account of the awards of the judges which were fearful and wonderful. The cakewalk brought out a new contortionist in the person of Thomas Gill, the human snake. As Mr. Gill had a little girl for a partner, however, he was disqualified, despite the protests of those on the floor. The boys had a good time and came home on the last train with just enough energy left to keep all the bables on board fully awake.

About 3,000 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs spent the day at Lagoon yester-day and indulged in a very good time. The usual prizes were the order of the day. Footraces, sports, dancing and boating were numbered among the at-tractions. In the tug-of-war the Salt Lake team walked away with the Provo lads. A ball game was also one of the features. Fort Douglas beating a junior Provo team in a horrible manner. Mrs. Albert Fisher of Salt Lake was voted the most popular Rebekah at the resort and accordingly captured the prize offered for the occasion. There were also a number of prizes offered and won for the best waltzers, cake walks and kindred events.

The Oregon Short Line today placed at the disposal of the Sisters of St. Mary's Academy and Holy Cross hospital a special car to Garfield. The car was attached to the morning train and sidetracked at the beach to be picked up on the return trip this afternoon.

RIDERS DISPLAY NERVE.

Houseman and Chapman Stick to Their Machines Although in Great Danger.

There was plenty of excitement and several thrills left over at the Salt Palace bicycle races last evening, and even if the spectators did not see the finish of the 20-mile race as scheduled, they got more than thier money's worth out of the performance put up by the pacers and pace followers, It was the second effort to pull off the match race between Billy Samuelson and Clem Turville. That someone was not killed in the accidents that happened is really remarkable, and when it was learned that no bones were brokn, it seems more astounding than

The machines started out well, but one can never tell. During the eighth mile the post of the seat on the ma-chine which Chapman was handling broke and the Atlanta boy dropped. He did not strike the track, however, for with presence of mind and admir-able coolness he threw his body for ward and gripped the handlebars tightly drawing himself onto the machine. When the seat fell, Turville was riding close up, but quick as a flash he shot up the bank and escaped serious in-the eleventh mile, the rear tire on the motor he was following blew out nearly causing a bad fall. The race was stopped again while Barney Oldfield's machinewas rigged out for sailing. Dur-ing the delay, it was agreed between the two riders that in the event of an-other accident and one of the riders was disabled, the other was to be declared the winner, Scarcely a mile had been covered when the seat post on Old-field's machine broke, throwing Oldfield heavily to the track. The seat struck Samuelson's wheel and he was thrown several feet into the air. His shoulder was badly wrenched and his leg cut and bruised. Oldfield pluckily held on to his machine and was dragged halfto his machine and was dragged half-way around the track over the rough boards. He tried in vain to reach the plug to stop the power but was un-successful. As the motor was running at about a 1:35 clip he was forced to let go and leave Houseman who was steering, to his fate. Relieved of the weight of Oldfield, the huge sputtering and snorting machine started out on a wild run. The rear wheel swayed up and down the steep incline of the track like the tail of a monster kite. The like the tail of a monster kite. The awe-stricken spectators held their breath expecting every second to see Housman ground under the weight of the runaway machine. That he would gain the mastery over the monster did not seem possible, and his friends in the excitement of the moment yelled frantically to him to jump and save bimself. But Housman is made of different stuff. He did that which crowds delight to witness. He displayed bravery and cool, calm judgment. With a grip of iron he hung onto the handles, bars and forced the machine down on the pole. Around the track flew the machine while several trainers ran wildly after it, possibly with the foolish ides of making a low tackle and throwing it to the ground. Fortunately for the lone rider and for themselves, none of the men attempted the tackle, Finally Housman gained the mastery and with a quick downward movement and with a quick downward movement broke the wires connected with the battery and shutting the power off. The machine was then brought to a stand-still in front of the reserved seats. Housman was cheered loudly and given several rounds of applause for his nerve and good judgment. He escaped without a scratch. It was then announced that owing to Samuelson's inability to continue the race, Turville was declared the winner. The only other event on the program was a half-mile handicap for professionals. The finish was a hot one between Hofman and Chapman, the former winning by half a wheel. The
